P.E.I. Abrasion Resistance

For a correct installation of ceramic tile, it is necessary to know its abrasion resistance, which is influenced not only by the tile's characteristics but also by the place where it is installed. The presence of abrasive materials as well as location with direct access from the exterior are factors that shorten the life span of the floor.

Cesantoni's products are classified in five groups, detailed below, according to their abrasion resistance.

- 1
PEI Flooring subject light traffic.
- 2
PEI Flooring adapted light to medium traffic.
- 3
PEI Flooring subject medium traffic.
- 4
PEI Flooring subject to medium to heavy traffic with greater abrasion resistance.
- 5
PEI Flooring adapted to heavy traffic.

TTM Shade and Mixture Variation

In the manufacturing of its products, Cesantoni uses advanced technology that imitates stone and natural materials, allowing for a wide array of looks and finishes that are characteristic of these materials, therefore the contents of each box present variations in shade and texture. The product lines are classified in four, as described below:

- A LOW Shade and Texture Variation.
- B MODERATE Shade and Texture Variation.
- C HIGH Shade and Texture Variation.
- D DICERSE and Share Texture Variation.

Warning:

- *Ceramic wall and floor tiles are manufactured by firing raw materials at very high temperatures which produces slight variations in tone and size among pieces.
- *Warranty only cover top grade products. Claims on already installed material are not allowed.
- *Due to accepted variations when printing the catalogue, colors and tones in the photographs are approximations of the real colors.
- *Using acid on floors and tiles irreversibly damages the glaze.
